

George Macricostas
CEO and Founder

George Macricostas is the CEO and founder of RagingWire Telecommunications, Inc., a leading IT solutions provider that delivers premium manage services and world-class data center infrastructure to large, data-intensive enterprise companies. He has 15 years of technical and business management experience in business operations and information technology. Along with making key business decisions for RagingWire, his day-to-day management responsibilities include overseeing the company's finance, human resources, and administration functions. Previously, Mr. Macricostas was a senior vice president at Photronics, Inc., where he was responsible for all aspects of the company's IT infrastructure. Mr. Macricostas' functions included global communications network operations, fault tolerant system services, Oracle-based manufacturing and financial systems, and custom software development. This infrastructure supported an extremely demanding 24 x 7 global production environment. Additional responsibilities included directing a corporate standardization department to optimize and standardize Photronics' manufacturing processes worldwide. Mr. Macricostas graduated from Western Connecticut State University with a bachelor's degree in business administration and industrial management.
